

Table of Contents

Preface	VII
Table of Contents	XI
Abbreviations and Primary Sources Table	XVII

Part I: Mapping the Apostle Paul's Moral Milieu 1

Chapter 1: An Introduction to Greco-Roman Philosophy of Mind 3

1. What Is Ancient Philosophy of Mind?	3
2. Which Moral Transformation Systems and Why	5
3. Power, Human Agency, and Divine Correspondence	12

Chapter 2: Contingency, Coherence, and Philosophical Systems 17

1. Methods and Models	17
1.1. A Proviso on the Use of the Term System	17
1.2. Toward an Abstracted Model of Moral Transformation	23
2. Components to Moral Transformation	31
2.1. Why Begin with the Passions: Defining Their Structure and Power	31
2.2. Philosophical Reactions to Popular Views on the Passions	33
2.3. Self-Mastery, Moral Action, Virtue, and Other Components	37
Fig. 1: Self-Mastery, Temperance, and Character Formation	40

Summary Remarks for Part I 45

Part II: Moral Transformation in Middle Platonism 47

Chapter 3: The Body-Beating Platonist: The Non-Cognitive Structure of the Passions and the Platonic Counter-Cycle of Virtue Against Vice 49

1. Introducing Middle Platonism	49
1.1. The Founder and His Followers: Plato, Plutarch, Alcinous, and Galen	50
1.2. Unifying Doctrines and Common Commitments	51

2. Self-Mastery as Moderation of the Passions	56
2.1. The Platonic Non-Cognitive Theory of Emotions	57
2.2. The Platonic View of Self-Mastery	66
3. Vice, Virtue, and Character Formation	73
3.1. The Cycle of Error and Vice	75
3.2. The Counter-Cycle of Virtuous Action, Habit, and Character Formation	78
Fig. 2: The Middle Platonic Program of Behavior Modification	85
3.3. Debilitating Desire and Exercising Reason's Power	88
Fig. 3: Plato's Anthropology	98
Fig. 4: Middle Platonic Anthropology	99
Chapter 4: "Becoming like God" and Nurturing Moral Progress in Middle Platonism	103
1. The Goal to "Become like God"	103
1.1. Plato's Tension between the Virtuous Life and a Life of Contemplation	103
1.2. Assimilation through Contemplation	105
1.3. Assimilation through the Moral Life	112
2. Diverse Ways of Imitating the Divine: How the Middle Platonists Resolved Plato's Tension	119
2.1. Moral Likeness to a Lesser, Demiurgic God according to Alcinous	123
Excursus: Plato's Theology	129
Table 1: Plato's Metaphysical Framework	130
Table 2: Plato's Religious / Mythic Framework	131
Table 3: Alcinous' Theology	134
2.2. Moral Likeness to the Thoughts of the First God according to Alcinous	136
2.3. Moral Likeness to the Divine Attributes of God according to Plutarch	139
Table 4: Plutarch's Theology ...	147
2.4. A Non-Platonist Account of Assimilation to God according to Galen	148
3. Nature versus Nurture: Mentors, Friends, and the Hard-Wired Limitations to Moral Progress	155
3.1. "To Know Thyself" Requires the Help of Others	156
3.2. Moral Mentors and Frank Friends	158
3.3. Nature's Limits on Moral Progress	162
Summary Remarks for Part II	171

Part III: Moral Transformation in Stoicism 173

Chapter 5: The Superhuman Stoic: The Cognitive Structure of the Passions and the Perfection of Moral Judgment 175

1. Introducing the Roman Stoa of the Early Imperial Period 175

- 1.1. The Founders and Their Followers: The Old Stoa, Seneca, Musonius Rufus, Epictetus, and Other Greco-Roman Stoics 177
- 1.2. Neostoic Orthodoxy and Innovations 179

2. The Stoic Cognitive Theory of Emotions 183

- 2.1. The Taxonomy of Emotions 184
- 2.2. The Mind Experiences an Appearance (Stage 1) 188
- 2.3. The Mind Judges the Impression (Stage 2) 190
- 2.4. The Judgment Produces an Impulse (Stage 3) 193
- 2.5. The Impulse Moves the Human Agent toward Action (Stage 4) 195
- 2.6. A Stoic Example from Euripides on the Cognitive Origin of Emotion 202

3. The Stoic View of Self-Mastery 207

- 3.1. Aiming for Stoic Ἀπάθεια 207
- 3.2. Extirpating the Passions 213
- 3.3. Self-Mastery and Temperance as the Consistent Exercise of Knowledge 219

Chapter 6: The Good, the Bad, and the Indifferent: Stoic Moral Psychology of Action and Character Formation 221

1. The Cognitive Formation of Virtue versus Vice 221

- 1.1. Virtues as Types of Knowledge and Virtue as a Stable State 222
- 1.2. Vices as Types of Ignorance and Viciousness as an Unstable State 226

2. The Instantaneous and Comprehensive Character of Stoic Perfection 228

- 2.1. The Taxonomies and Unity of the Virtues 228
- 2.2. Transformation as Radical Change not Gradual Progress 236
- 2.3. Stoic Perfection: Available to All, Attainable by Few 242

3. Moral Valuation, Action, and Choice 245

- 3.1. Defining the Good, the Bad, and the Indifferent 247
- 3.2. Distinguishing Preferred versus Dispreferred Indifferents 253
- Fig. 5: Goods, Evils, and Indifferents (Preferred, Dispreferred, or Neither) 258
- 3.3. Types of Moral Acts: Right, Erroneous, Appropriate, and Unsuitable 259
- Fig. 6: Appropriate vs. Inappropriate Acts: Right, Intermediate, and Erroneous 261
- 3.4. A Very Short Epitome of Stoic Ethics 270

Chapter 7: Neostoic Innovations to Chrysippian Moral Psychology	271
1. The Prominence of Power Language in Neostoic Accounts	271
1.1. The Exaggerated Power of Appearances, Assent, and Impulses	272
1.2. The Excessive Power of the Passions and Epictetus' Deconstruction of Medea as a Denial of 'Ακρασία	281
1.3. Rational Power according to Musonius Rufus and Marcus Aurelius	292
2. Componential Theories on the Formation of the Passions	296
2.1. Panaetius on Impulsive Power versus Rational Power	298
2.2. Posidonius on Cognitive Passions Charged by Bodily Impulses	302
2.3. Seneca on the Pre-Passions	307
3. Componential Theories on Non-Cognitive Aids to Self-Mastery	315
3.1. Diogenes of Babylon on Music's Contribution to Self-Mastery	317
3.2. Posidonius on Moderating Affective Movements with Music	325
3.3. Seneca on Pacifying the Pre-Passions with Poetry	328
Chapter 8: Neostoic Innovations in Habit, Practice, and Mentoring	332
1. Non-Intellectual Virtues and Vicious Habitudes	332
1.1. Defining Non-Intellectual Virtues as Skills or Habitudes	333
1.2. Proclivities, Sick Habits, and Infirm Conditions	339
2. Spiritual Exercises and Practicing Philosophy	345
2.1. Practicing Philosophy and Why Knowing Is Not Enough	346
2.2. Types of Spiritual Exercises	356
3. Mentoring Students to Practice Philosophy	363
3.1. Seneca on Mentorship in Stoicism and Other Philosophical Traditions	364
3.2. From Mentors and Students to a Society of Stoic Friends	370
Chapter 9: The Stoic Self	375
1. Οἰκείωσις and the Formation of the Integrated Self	375
1.1. Hierocles on Οἰκείωσις, Self-Preservation, and the Constitution of Self	378
1.2. The Doxographers on Appropriation and Appropriate Acts	381
1.3. Stoic Ethics as the Rational Outworking of Pre-Rational Οἰκείωσις	385
1.4. The Integrated Self: From Individual to Social Οἰκείωσις	396
2. Stoic Anthropology as Material and Monistic	401
2.1. The Human Person as an Ensouled Body and Embodied Soul	401
2.2. The Monism of the Soul and Rational Agency	407
2.3. An Epitome of Stoic Humanity	410

Chapter 10: The Stoic God and Imitatio Dei	411
1. The Nature of God and Humanity's Role in the Cosmos	411
1.1. A Matrix of Interentailing Propositions on the Nature of God	411
1.2. God's Providence, Natural Determinism, and Moral Responsibility	418
1.3. Epictetus on Προαίρεσις and Neostoic Developments on Freedom	429
2. The Imitation of God as the Stoic Τέλος	437
2.1. Living according to Nature, Reason, and Virtue	438
2.2. Imitating the Rational and Virtuous God	441
2.3. The Role of God in Stoic Moral Progress	452
Summary Remarks for Part III	455
 Part IV: Retrospect and Prospect	 459
Chapter 11: Retrospect: Models and Milieu	461
1. The Middle Platonist Model of Moral Transformation	461
1.1. Platonist Moral Psychology	462
1.2. The Platonist Cycle of Vice and Counter-Cycle of Virtue	463
1.3. Social Structures Reinforcing the Attainment of Virtue	464
1.4. Integrating Assimilation to God with Moral Formation	464
1.5. A Platonist Model of Reinforcing Concentric Cycles	468
Fig. 7: The Middle Platonist Model of Moral Transformation	469
2. The Stoic Model of Moral Transformation	470
2.1. Stoic Moral Psychology	470
2.2. Stoic Moral Valuation of the Good, the Bad, and the Indifferent	472
2.3. Instantaneous Transformation and the Analogue of a Titration Point	472
Fig. 8: The Early Stoic Model of Moral Psychology, Action, and Perfection	474
2.4. Neostoic Innovations to the Chrysippan Model of Perfection	475
Fig. 9: Neostoic Innovations to Early Stoic Moral Psychology and Formation ...	475
2.5. An Integrated Stoic Model: Transformation, Imitatio Dei , and Οικέλιωσις.....	479
Fig. 10: The Stoic Model of Moral Transformation	481
3. Mapping the Moral Milieu of the Apostle Paul between Platonism and Stoicism	483
3.1. The Importance of Platonism and Stoicism in the Transitional Period	484
3.2. Comparisons between the Models and the Spectrum They Create	487
Fig. 11: Greco-Roman Philosophies in a Non-Cognitive to Cognitive Spectrum	489

Chapter 12: Prospect: Interactions, Intertextuality, and Encyclopedia.....	493
1. Intertextuality, Greco-Roman Allusions, and the Types of Interactions between Philosophical Schools	493
1.1. Eclecticism (Type of Interaction 1)	494
1.2. Refutation (Type of Interaction 2)	497
1.3. Competitive Appropriation (Type of Interaction 3)	498
1.4. Irenic Appropriation (Type of Interaction 4)	503
1.5. Concession (Type of Interaction 5)	506
1.6. Common Ethical Usage (Type of Interaction 6)	512
1.7. Implications for Detecting Greco-Roman Allusions in the New Testament	516
2. Where Do We Go from Here?	519
2.1. An Estimation of Epicureanism and Diaspora Judaism in the Spectrum	519
Fig. 12: Epicureanism and Judaism between Platonism and Stoicism	522
2.2. Toward a Common Ancient Ethical Tradition	523
Closing Remarks	527
Appendix 1: The Philosopher Plato and the Legacy of the Academy:
Sources for Middle Platonism	531
1. The Life and Works of Plato	531
2. The Life and Works of Plato's Greco-Roman Heirs: Plutarch, Alcinous, and Galen	535
Appendix 2: Zeno, Chrysippus, and Their Late Hellenistic and Imperial Heirs:
Sources for Early, Middle, and Roman Stoicism	545
1. Zeno, Chrysippus, and the Early Stoa	545
2. Sources for Middle Stoicism	553
3. Sources for Roman Stoicism	555
Bibliography	567
Index of Ancient Sources	609
Index of Modern Authors	635
Index of Subjects	643