

They Called It Peace

Worlds of Imperial Violence

LAUREN BENTON

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS

PRINCETON & OXFORD

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations ix

Prologue xi

Chapter 1: From Small Wars to Atrocity in Empires 1

PART I: A WORLD OF PLUNDER 23

Chapter 2: Conquest by Raid and Massacre 27

Chapter 3: Private Booty, Public War 61

PART II: A WORLD OF ARMED PEACE 99

Chapter 4: Bad Conduct in Far Places 103

Chapter 5: Saving Subjects, Finding Enemies 148

Conclusion: Specters of Imperial Violence 183

Acknowledgments 199

Notes 201

Bibliography 249

Index 269

ILLUSTRATIONS

2.1. Skirmish to recover cattle stolen in a raid, Diebold Schilling the Younger, Lucerne Chronicle , 1513.	30
2.2. Muhammad I of Granada leading the Mudéjar Revolt of 1264–1266.	40
2.3. Detail from “The Wolf of Gubbio,” Stefano de Giovanni (“Sassetta”), ca. 1437–1444.	43
2.4. The massacre at Mystic, 1637.	52
3.1. Francisco Suárez (1548–1617).	66
3.2. Portuguese Fortress of Baçaim (Vasai), ca. 1650.	77
3.3. Map of English Jamaica, 1671.	89
4.1. Map of Coromandel Coast, mid-eighteenth century.	107
4.2. Portrait of Muhammad Ali Khan (1717–1795).	109
4.3. Map of territories in the Río de la Plata exchanged in the 1750 Treaty of Madrid.	123
5.1. Map of Pacific Coast of North America, early nineteenth century.	158
5.2. Governor George Arthur’s Proclamation to the Aborigines of Tasmania, ca. 1828–1830.	173