Jingwei Wu

Private and Public on Social Network Sites

Differences and Similarities between Germany and China in a Globalized World

PL ACADEMIC RESEARCH

Contents

I. Introduction 15

1.1 The Problem 15

1.2 Organization of Dissertation 20

II. Conceptual Framework for Studying the Boundary Between "the Private" and "the Public" 23

2.1 A Historical Overview of the Definitions of "the Private" and "the Public" 23

2.2 Theoretical Frameworks of the Boundary between "Private" and "Public" 27

2.3 Private/Public Distinction: Decision by Social Contexts 33

2.4 Focus of Research 42

III. Boundary Management Pertaining to SNSs 43

3.1 "Private" and "Public" on SNSs 43

3.1.1 Private Character of SNSs 44

3.1.2 Public Character of SNSs 45

3.1.3 SNSs: Still at the Forefront of Evolving Public Sphere 47

3.2 Information Flow on SNSs: from Private to Public Space 54

3.2.1 Self-disclosure 55

3.2.2 Political Expression 56

3.3 Mechanism of Boundary Management 58

3.3.1 Social Exchange Theory 60

3.3.2 Social Penetration Theory 62

3.3.3 Communication Privacy Management Theory 65

3.3.4 Boundary Management on SNSs 68

IV. "The Private" and "The Public": Differences and Similarities in a Globalized Germany and China 71

4.1 "The Private" and "The Public" in German Society 71

4.1.1 Historical Transformation of Concepts of "Private" and "Public" in Germany 72

4.1.2 Increasing Privacy Concerns and Expanding Public Space on SNSs 74

4.2 "The Private" and "The Public" in Chinese Society 77

4.2.1 Cultural Backgrounds and Historical Review of "The Private" and "The Public" in China 77

4.2.2 "The Private" and "The Public" as Merging Concepts on SNSs 82

4.3 Globalization: Digital Differences and Similarities of the Boundary between "The Private" and "The Public" 84

4.3.1 Media Freedom and Media System 87

4.3.2 Economic Development 89

4.3.3 Globalization and Culture 91

V. Proposing Models of the Boundary Between "The Private" and "The Public" on SNSs 101

5.1 Proposing a Model for Self-disclosure 101

5.2 Proposing a Model for Political Expression 110

5.3 Self-disclosure and Political Expression under a Cross-Cultural Context 119

VI. Research Method 121

6.1 Combining Quantitative Questionnaires and Qualitative Interviews 121

6.2 The Procedure of Data Collection and Data Quality 124

6.3 Variables and Measurements 128

VII. Results 137

7.1 Results of Online Questionnaire 137

7.1.1 Description of Survey Respondents 137

7.1.2 Self-disclosure and Model Testing 141

7.1.3 Political Expression and Model Testing 149

7.1.4 Cross-cultural Differences of the Boundary between "The Private" and "The Public" 154

7.2 Results of Qualitative Interview 165

7.2.1 Name, Photo and Profile Information 165

7.2.2 The Parameters for Personal Information 172

7.2.3 Trust on SNSs 176

7.2.4 Target Audience on SNSs 177

7.2.5 The Boundary of Political Expression 178

7.2.6 The Use of SNSs Increases Political Expression 179

7.2.7 Self-censorship on SNSs 180

7.2.8 Political Efficacy vs. SNSs Efficacy on SNSs 182

7.2.9 Trust in Public/State TV or Private TV 185

7.2.10 SNSs as Private and Public Spaces 187

VIII. Conclusions and Discussion 191

8.1 Summary of Research Goals 191

8.2 Review of Research Findings 193

8.2.1 The Boundary between "The Private" and "The Public" on SNS 193

8.2.2 Differences and Similarities in a Globalized Germany and China 196

8.3 Limitations, Discussions and Suggestions for Further Research 198

List of Tables 201

List of Figures 203

References 205

Appendixes 231

A. Questionnaire 231

B. Question for Semi-structured Interview 238

C. Interviewed SNSs users' Demographics 240