

Contents

Contributors	page ix
Introduction: Nazi Crimes and the Law Nathan Stoltzfus and Henry Friedlander	1
1 Nazi Crimes and the German Law Henry Friedlander	15
2 The Setting and the Significance of the Nuremberg Trials: A Historian's Perspective Gerhard L. Weinberg	35
3 The American Military Commission Trials of 1945 Patricia Heberer	43
4 Punishing the Excess: Sadism, Bureaucratized Atrocity, and the U.S. Army Concentration Camp Trials, 1945–1947 Michael S. Bryant	63
5 Perceptions and Suppression of Nazi Crimes by the Postwar German Judiciary Joachim Perels	87
6 Getting Away with Murder: The Täubner Case Dick de Mildt	101
7 “A Great Achievement of German Troops in Mountain Warfare”: Cold War Pressures and the German Prosecution of Wehrmacht War Crimes in the Case of Cephalonia, 1943 Nathan Stoltzfus	113

8	The Trials of Nazi War Criminals in Austria Winfried R. Garscha	139
9	The German-German Rivalry and the Prosecution of Nazi War Criminals During the Cold War, 1958–1965 Annette Weinke	151
10	History in the Courthouse: The Presentation of World War II Crimes in U.S. Courts Sixty Years Later Elizabeth B. White	173
11	Law, History, and Holocaust Denial in the Courtroom: The Zündel and Irving Cases Christopher R. Browning	197
	Index	217