

Contents

Illustrations	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
Abbreviations	xv
Introduction	1
1. Preparation for a Modern War? The Staff College and Prewar Staff Training	17
2. War Plans and Reality: The BEF and the Commitment to a Continental War	41
3. Escalation and Reality: The BEF's Move toward Becoming a Continental Army and the Exercise of "Per Diem" as a Control on Battle	75
4. Breakdown: The Battle of the Somme and the Near-Collapse of the Transportation System	109
5. The End of Ad Hocism: Sir Eric Geddes's Reorganization of the BEF's Transportation System and the Arrival of Forecasting	139
6. Geddes's Legacy: Transportation in France and Its Impact on Tactical, Operational, and Strategic Decision Making in 1917	155
7. The Challenge of Mobility: Haig's Administration, Operational Success, and the Return of Movement to the Western Front	179
8. Failure? The System Breaks Down after the Armistice	211
9. Conclusion	231
Selected Bibliography	241
Index	251