

Bernhard May / May-Britt Stumbaum (eds.)

NATO versus EU?
Security Strategies for Europe

German Council on Foreign Relations
Forum European Foreign and Security Policy

Berlin 2005

CONTENTS

PREFACE	7
Coping With Traditional Security Threats—Responses to Terrorism, Proliferation, Failing States Kestutis Paulauskas	9
The European Security Strategy—Coping with threats in a comprehensive way Sven Biscop	19
International Migration as a Non-Traditional Security Threat, and the EU Responses to this Phenomenon Anna Kicinger	27
Dealing with Europe's New Neighbours—Russia and the Western NIS Vadim Kononenko	43
The Dialectics of NATO-Russia and NATO-Ukraine Relations Barry L. Adams	55
The Broader Middle East Initiative and the EU's Programmes— What's the best Choice for the Middle East? Svenja Sinjen	81
The European Union and the Broader Middle East Tarik Oguzlu	93
Toward A Complementary NATO-Security Strategy in Afghanistan Daphné Lucas	111
Which Role for NATO and the EU in Iraq? Ilze Rassa	119

Staying the course—on the future of NATO's engagement in the Balkans after the end of SFOR Christopher Bennett	137
USA and Europe in the International System—Four American Perspectives Magnus Christiansson	147
Europe's new role in global affairs: implications for NATO and Transatlantic relations Maxime Lefebvre	171
NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS	181
THE GERMAN COUNCIL ON FOREIGN RELATIONS (DGAP)	185